Role of Traditional and Complementary Medicine Systems such as Ayurveda, Yoga in overall healthcare and its relevance in mitigation and treatment of COVID-19

1.Introduction

COVID- 19 pandemic has affected health situation in almost all CICA member states and wider world. Each country is dealing with the challenge of COVID- 19 with cooperation of each other for more than a year. In response to the pandemic, CICA has also added a Confidence Building Measure (CBM) on 'Epidemiology, Public Health and Pharmaceuticals' which is very timely.

In several CICA Member States, the traditional medicine or their indigenous medicine or the complementary medicine are well established and integrated with health care infrastructure. In some other countries who do not have their traditional system of medicine, the Complimentary & Alternative Medicine (CAM) systems does exist in the form of Yoga, physical exercise, food supplements etc. Nevertheless, their contribution in promoting health of people cannot be ignored. Ayurveda is also recognized in CICA Member states like Bangladesh, Sri Lanka, U.A.E. and Bahrain.

The Traditional Systems of Medicine include Ayurveda, Yoga, etc. have scientific base and evidence of long safe and effective use of therapies, principles and medicines. In some of CICA Nations they are beautifully gelled with the local culture and are followed subconsciously for maintaining health and well-being where as in some others many people are adopting the advocacy of Traditional systems of Medicine in their lifestyle. They occupy key space in contemporary community health education.

As per the WHO report published in the year 2018, worldwide the acceptance to traditional systems has increased from 25 countries in the year 1999 to 124 countries in the year 2018. Many of them including India have integrated Traditional systems of medicine in their public health system to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals 2 i.e. nutrition and Sustainable Development Goal 3 i.e. Health and Wellbeing.

Historically, students from various countries used to visit famous ancient Universities like Nalanda, Taksheela etc. to study Ayurveda. Trade in traditional medicine sector had been very active till the 18th Century. There is surge in this sector since past decade. The global herbal medicine market size was estimated to be US$ 83 billion in 2019 and is expected to reach US$ 550 billion by 2030 at a CAGR 18.9% through 2030. Often, Herbal medicines are used as dietary supplements. People use herbal medicines to cure ailments, or as an attempt to maintain or improve their health. Herbal medicines aim to return the body to its state of natural balance so that it can heal itself when ill. Different types of herbs act on different parts of the body.

India has taken numerous steps to standardize the Indian Systems of Medicine like Ayurveda, Yoga, etc. which includes development of Pharmacopoeia standards of herbal medicines, Service standards, Accreditation mechanism, development of various guidelines for integration in Public Health Services of India etc.

2.Role of AYUSH System of Medicine in Public Healthcare

There is growing interest worldwide in alternative system of medicine. In India, Ayurveda, Sidha, Unani, Naturopathy and Homeopathy (AYUSH) Medicine is a time tested safe and effective system of medicine being practiced since ages and is gaining increasing attention.

The strengths of Traditional systems of medicine and their immense potential in achieving the sustainable development goals - especially SDG2 i.e. nutrition and SDG 3 i.e Health and Wellness is being acknowledged widely. Ayurveda has specially emphasized on health promotional activities to keep ourselves healthy in all seasons and at all the age wise stages of life. India has effectively integrated AYUSH in Public Health delivery System. The Government of India launched National AYUSH Mission (NAM) to envisage better access to AYUSH services through increase in the number of AYUSH Hospitals and Dispensaries, mainstreaming of AYUSH through co- location of AYUSH facilities at Primary Health Centres (PHCs), Community Health Centres (CHCs) and District Hospitals (DHs), ensure availability of AYUSH drugs and trained manpower.

The Government of India launched “National Programme for Prevention and Control of Cancer, Diabetes, Cardio-vascular diseases and Stroke (NPCDCS)” in 2010 in 100 districts across 21 States, in order to prevent and control the major Non- Communicable Diseases (NCDs). Considering the strength of Ayurveda or AYUSH systems for prevention and control of NCDs/ Lifestyle disorders by promoting healthy lifestyle, the Govt. of India has integrated Ayurveda, Yoga and other systems in prevention and control of Non Communicable Diseases.

3.Role of AYUSH System of Medicine in COVID-19 pandemic

In the ongoing COVID- 19 Pandemic, AYUSH systems have played a vital role in mitigation and treatment of COVID-19. Numerous research studies on COVID-19 taking up on Ayurveda and Siddha products have demonstrated their efficacy in the management of disease. Ayurveda medicines are integrated in the National Protocol of India for COVID management.

In addition to the preventive measures defined by the Government of India such as social distancing, wearing mask, etc., enhancing the body's natural defence system (immunity) has an important role in maintaining optimum health and thereby offering prevention from the virus. Ayurveda, being the science of life, propagates the gifts of nature in maintaining healthy and happy living. Ayurveda's extensive knowledge base on preventive care, derives from the concepts of "Dinacharya" - daily regimes and "Ritucharya" - seasonal regimes to maintain healthy life. It is a plant-based science. The simplicity of awareness about oneself and the harmony each individual can achieve by uplifting and maintaining his or her immunity is emphasized across Ayurveda's classical scriptures.

4. Initiatives of the Government of India:

Setting up of the Task force for taking up research studies w.r.t. COVID-19; taking up research on Ayurveda products in collaboration with CSIR; population study being conducted by the ministry, etc. are some of the initiatives taken by the Ministry of AYUSH to fight the novel corona virus. It has recommended self-care guidelines for preventive health measures and boosting immunity with special reference to respiratory health. These are supported by Ayurvedic literature and scientific publications. Ayurveda's immunity boosting measures for self-care during COVID-19 crisis have been translated in various languages and shared with Indian Missions abroad. Collaborative clinical studies have been initiated. Collaborative research studies including clinical trials on some of Ayurvedic Medicine are underway with International Partners.

Concept Paper

of the Conference on Interaction and Confidence Building Measures in Asia (CICA)
(21-22 November 2022, Dushanbe)

The Republic of Tajikistan, as the coordinator and presiding state in the tourism area of the Conference on Interaction and Confidence Building Measures in Asia, plans to hold a meeting of the heads of tourism departments of the CICA Member States on 21-22 November 2022 at the National Library of Dushanbe

I. Introduction

Nowadays, the tourism sector, as the most important area of interaction between countries, became a factor of global integration processes, as well as a means of stimulating external economic relations. Tourism contributes to the development of international communications, trade exchange, transport, insurance operations, services related to capital investment, science and technology, as well as cultural ties, information and advisory services, which, in turn, encourage public diplomacy, promoting the rapprochement of nations and their cultures.

In view of the above, the adoption of the concept paper of cooperation among the CICA Member States in the area of tourism deserves special attention.

In accordance with the CICA Catalogue of Confidence Building Measures adopted at the CICA Ministerial Meeting in October 2004 and the Cooperative Approach for the Implementation of the CICA Confidence Building Measures approved at the Meeting of the Senior Officials Committee in March 2007, the Republic of Tajikistan took the initiative to coordinate confidence building measures among the CICA Member States in the area of tourism.

Taking into account the scale of the tasks set by the CICA Member States in the field of tourism development, it seems relevant and necessary to hold a meeting of experts and then a meeting of the heads of tourism departments of the CICA Member States.

CONFIDENCE BUILDING MEASURES IN ASIA (CICA)

Information Exchange on Scanning Systems, Use of Technical Equipment and Projects

Concept Paper

1. Background and Significance

Volume of international trade is expanding. The social and technological transformation in the world is contributing to a faster transportation of goods and transfer of information while it is also increasing the competitiveness in the market. The new production techniques, which are derived from this technological transformation, forces us to undertake every transaction in an unprecedentedly faster pace.

In order to facilitate this new pace of trade and contribute to private sector's needs to be competitive and efficient in the market, customs administrations are working to be up to date in the context of infrastructure.

In this perspective it is apparent that customs administrations need to use as much technical equipment and automated systems as they can in an effective way. Increasing speed of trade is also making another aspect of international commerce more important which is security. Customs are modernising themselves to reach the effective security measures while trying to facilitate the rapid movement of goods.

Due to these factors our administration is doing its part and following the advancements in technical and administrative aspects in the world through both its own continuing applications and also projects which are realised in a defined period of time.

In order to combat smuggling in customs territory we are using a number of different technical equipment which serves in different areas. For example we are using non-intrusive inspection systems like x-ray scanners for having the visuals of inside of a trailer and also using CO2 measuring devices to detect if any living being is inside without exposing the vehicle to x-ray radiation. As another example to emphasise the diversity of controlled territory, we are using motorboats for maritime patrolling on the other hand we use CCTV cameras to monitor air and land border gates.

We are also benefiting from both national and international projects to increase our administrative capacity through different kinds of multilateral cooperations with various customs administrations and international organisations and also bilateral collaborations with individual countries to elevate our efficiency level of service for improving our both facilitation for trading of goods and fight against illicit traffic.

2. Objective

Considering the reality of the speed of technological developments, experience and information exchange on use of tools is one of the key collaboration areas of CICA, the proposed online meeting will pursue the objectives listed below:

- Interactive exchange of information and experience between customs administrations of CICA members, which holds an utmost importance in this day and age of international trade.
- Sharing both technical and administrative knowledge on equipment use and projects for providing an extra insight to every party in order to improve their services.
- Creating a network among member state customs administrations for continual information sharing about developments on the proposed matters.
- Promoting exchange of experience on applied projects in order to discover best practices.

3. Organizational Matters

Ministry of Trade (DG of Customs Enforcement) of the Republic of Turkey will present its practices. Participants from CICA members will share their practices and experience on the subject. Due to the spread of COVID-19, the meeting will be held online.

4. Suggestions and Expectations

Contribution of relevant experts such as field officers and the specialists who hold the position of assessing the use of technical equipment and also running the administrative and applicative aspects of projects in general is expected.

CONCEPT PAPER

Global Forum on Human Rights Education

Background

After the proclamation of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the international community has recognized human rights and fundamental freedoms and promoted their observance through the norms and mechanisms of international human rights law. One of these rights - the right to education - is the starting point for the enjoyment of all human rights. It includes human rights education, the right to learn about these rights, and the methods and means of protecting and promoting human rights in our communities. Human rights education and training is a lifelong process that concerns all ages.

Human rights education provisions have been incorporated into many international instruments and documents, culminating in the adoption of the United Nations Declaration on Human Rights Education and Training by the UN General Assembly in December 2011, which states that:

- every individual and every organ of society shall strive by teaching and education to promote respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms;
- everyone has the right to education, and that education shall be directed to the full development of the human personality and the sense of its dignity, enable all persons to participate effectively in a free society and promote understanding, tolerance and friendship among all nations and all racial, ethnic or religious groups, and further the activities of the United Nations for the maintenance of peace, security and the promotion of development and human rights.

This year marks 10 years since the adoption of the United Nations Declaration on Human Rights Education and Training.

The initiative to hold a Global Forum dedicated to the 10th anniversary of the UN Declaration on Human Rights Education and Training was put forward by President of the Republic of Uzbekistan Shavkat Mirziyoyev at the 46th session of the United Nations Human Rights Council.

Human rights education and training is essential for the promotion of universal respect for and observance of all human rights and fundamental freedoms for all, in accordance with the principles of the universality, indivisibility and interdependence of human rights. Human rights education that is participatory and learner-centered develops knowledge and important skills for critical analysis and action. It helps people to identify their rights and claim them effectively, and it assists officials and others who are responsible for protecting and fulfilling rights to understand how important it is to meet those obligations. It is essential to ensuring that people can fully participate in all the decision-making processes that affect their lives - political, economic, social, cultural and environmental - and the prevention of violations, violence and conflict.

The Declaration places on states the primary responsibility “to promote and ensure human rights education and training”.

The ideas and principles of this Declaration have influenced many areas of international activity in the field of education.

Another important document aimed at education is the UN Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). Sustainable Development Goal 4 calls to ensure inclusive and equitable quality education and promote lifelong learning opportunities for all, so that young people could have access to free, quality education and training. Education enables upward socioeconomic mobility and is a key to escaping poverty. To achieve this, there is a need for concerted efforts to ensure that young women and men have access to free, equitable and quality education, as well as targeted training opportunities.

On 10 December 2004, the General Assembly of the United Nations proclaimed the World Programme for Human Rights Education to advance the implementation of human rights education programmes in all sectors. The Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) provides global coordination of the World Programme.

The World Programme is an ongoing initiative, structured in consecutive phases, to advance the implementation of human rights education programmes in all sectors, and the Member States should continue the implementation of human rights education in the primary and secondary school systems and in higher education, and human rights training for teachers and educators, civil servants, law enforcement officials and the military at all levels, as well as media representatives.

The World Programme for Human Rights Education is among useful tools that may assist and enhance the national implementation of the United Nations Declaration on Human Rights Education and Training.

The World Programme is structured in consecutive phases in order to further focus national human rights education efforts on specific sectors and issues:

- the first phase (2005-2009) focused on human rights education in the primary and secondary school systems;

- the second phase (2010-2014) focused on human rights education for higher education and on human rights training programmes for teachers and educators, civil servants, law enforcement officials and military personnel;

- the third phase (2015-2019) focuses specifically on human rights training for media professionals, in recognition of the vital role of free, independent and pluralistic media in promoting justice, non-discrimination, respect and human rights;

- from 2020 to 2024, the fourth phase of the World Programme for Human Rights Education is being implemented, which aims to teach and educate young people in the spirit of equality, respect for human rights and non-discrimination, which will create an inclusive peaceful society.

During the fourth phase of the World Programme, States and relevant stakeholders are encouraged to strengthen efforts to advance the implementation of the three previous phases, with special emphasis on:

advancing implementation by focusing especially on women, girls and children, and engaging with groups and individuals in vulnerable situations, in accordance with the objective of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development of “leaving no one behind”, and consolidating the work done;

providing human rights education and training for educators in formal and non-formal education and training, in particular those working with children and youth;

undertaking related research and mapping, sharing good practices and lessons learned, and sharing information among all actors.

In addition, the role of education in the promotion and protection of human rights is emphasized in many international documents of UNESCO, ILO.

In recent years, in order to fulfill the obligations assumed under international human rights treaties, Uzbekistan has been implementing systemic measures aimed at human rights education. In particular, in 2019, the National Action Programme and the Road Map were adopted to implement the provisions of the UN Declaration on Human Rights Education and Training.

By the decree of the President of the Republic of Uzbekistan dated 22 June 2020, the National Strategy of the Republic of Uzbekistan on Human Rights was adopted, which provides for the implementation of 78 specific measures. They are closely related to the 2030 Sustainable Development Goals, Uzbekistan's goal of joining the international rankings and indices of the top 50 countries in the field of human rights and freedoms, and others.

Within the framework of the National Strategy, the Ministry of Higher and Secondary Specialized Education and the Ministry of Public Education of the Republic of Uzbekistan are entrusted with the tasks of introducing training courses (textbooks) “Human Rights”, “Women's Rights”, “Children's Rights” in higher educational institutions, institutions specialized in advanced training and retraining of personnel (universities, institutes, centers, faculties, courses), as well as institutions of general secondary and specialized secondary, vocational education.

Monitoring the implementation of the National Action Programme and the Road Map helps you to see the main trends and problems of the educational process.

Taking into account the obligations undertaken by the country within the framework of the above international documents, in order to effectively implement the tasks outlined in the National Strategy of the Republic of Uzbekistan on Human Rights, as well as new challenges and problems generated by the pandemic and its consequences, there is a need for developing new approaches, new methodologies and practices in the organization and content of human rights education.
